STEEL WAS READY

The story of steel in Pittsburgh as told by United States Steel Corp. President Benjamin F. Fairless to that city's Chamber of Commerce Thursday is typical of its story in every steel town.

Pittsburgh was favored by its situation in regard to raw materials, transportation and markets. Through the years it developed a population of Americans highly trained in steel production. It faces the future with all its original advantages still in its favor; except for railroad rates, Mr. Fairless finds no reason to fear for Pittsburgh's future as a steel city.

When war came, steel was ready. It had the workers, the skill and the capacity to do the job. It had them because it had accepted responsibility to be ready to meet needs beyond the average. It hopes to be ready for future emergencies, and it especially hopes that government will raise no needless obstacles against its continued improvement.

"American business pays its taxes, its payroll and its other costs out of what it receives for its products," Mr. Fairless told his Pittsburgh audience. "The sum left over goes to the stockholders as a return for the use of their funds, or is reserved for the future needs of the particular enterprise. There is no magic about corporate finance. A corporation is exactly like an individual in this respect: It cannot for long spend more than it receives without 'going broke.' It is simply arithmetic that if corporate costs, whether they be taxes or wages or something else, are to increase, money must be found to pay the bill, and this in most instances can be accomplished only by an advance in the selling prices of industry's products."

LIFTING THE SIEGE OF LENINGRAD

The battle of the Russian cities, which has passed through climaxes at the gates of Moscow, in the streets of Stalingrad and back and forth through Kharkov, Kiev, Voronezh, Rostov, Smolensk and many others, has reached another climactic turning point in the lifting of the siege of Leningrad.

The expert observations of the scholars of strategy and the historians who soon will begin to prepare their accounts of the things that defeated the Germans in Russia must be awaited for full understanding of the cities' part in the Russo-German war. But it is plain enough that the Germans needed them desperately and, being unable to hold them or, as in the case of Moscow, Stalingrad and Leningrad to occupy them, lost not only the military advantage but the prestige which might have undermined Russian courage.

Russia's fighting forces and the Russian people, themselves, reached the height of their determination to repel the invasion when the Germans sought a showdown over the Soviet Union's three most precious cities. A war that Russia sometimes seemed to be losing could not be called won by the Germans while Leningrad, Moscow and Stalingrad, the symbolic bastions, remained unconquered. This was a matter not merely of railroads, logistics and strong points of military advantage; it was a history-making triumph of the unconquerable spirit of proud people fighting in defense of their homeland. The Germans know now something of what Napoleon Bonaparte learned about the Russians.

AMEN TO CHARLES E. WILSON

Charles E. Wilson, the war production board's vice chairman, seems to be rounding into shape as one of the country's ablest defenders of common sense. His speech to the Army Ordnance association, warning against revision against war as soon as the fighting stops and pleading for full and continuing preparedness deserves a resounding amen.

Most of us at one time or another after the last war dreamed about eliminating future conflagrations by letting our fire insurance lapse. Some of us dreamed out loud, and many of us took the foolishness literally. When the blaze broke out we were so deluded by our own wishful thinking we reassured one another calmly that it must be a false alarm because we had adopted a resolution against having any more fires.

It will happen again. The question is whether this time the dream will be kept separated from the reality. The premium on insurance against war comes high enough to justify plans to reduce it by preventive measures, but it does not come high enough to warrant a lapse of protection. Perhaps there will come a day when all risk will be eliminated, but until then the United States must do its peace dreaming in full awareness of the fact that dreaming won't make it so.

OUNCE OF PRECAUTION

An ounce of precaution is priceless when there is no cure.

Thus might the old adage well be revised for the war against infantile paralysis. For it is on this theory that the American people for 10 years have contributed their dimes and dollars to fight a vicious and mysterious enemy on the home front.

In many communities the 1944 annual fund-raising appeal of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis will be in the nature of a thanksgiving—an expression of divine thanks that they escaped the fury of the worst epidemic to hit this nation in 12 years. Only twice before in the recorded history of the disease in the United States have there been such serious outbreaks as that of 1943, with more than 12,000 cases reported.

But the generosity of the American people last year made possible quick and effective action against this disease gangster which ran rampant through California, Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, Colorado and other states.

Speedy help for those stricken was made available by local chapters of the National Foundation covering 3,000 of the nation's 3,070 counties, even as scientists—also supported in their work by those same dimes and dollars—sought further clues to the identity of the elusive cripple.

Last year the American people provided that ounce of precaution by their contributions. It could not be an ounce of prevention because there is no known preventive for the disease. But that ounce of precaution was priceless because there is no known cure for poliomyelitis.

Another old adage might also be revised for the infantile paralysis appeal this month—"A dime or dollar given may be a child's life saved."

THE STARS SAY:

For Sunday, January 23

SUNDAY'S horoscope indicates productive and pleasant relations with elders, superiors, and those with power to confer honors, favors, preferment and other cherished emoluments and benefits, both of material as well as spiritual worth. There may be unusual opportunity for demonstration of the creative, artistic as well as practical abilities, in a suddenly presented move. There may be change, romance and altogether gratifying and heartwarming experiences or adventures.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of exceptional openings for attaining favors, preferment, promotion and the fulfillment of long cherished objectives. This through the influence and personal interests of elders, superiors, employers and those in authority. These may be impressed by a show of unusual sagacity, shrewdness or rare talents, of a creative and constructive quality. Practical as well as cultural or professional ambitions should be pushed.

A child born on this day will have excellent talents as well as practical skills with fine creative artistic, perhaps dramatic ability. These will find high favors with influential personages, willing to assist to a career.

MONDAY'S astrological forecast emphasizes the necessity for marshalling all the resources, talents, skills and energies for readiness for a sudden and surprising opportunity for placing the affairs and the future on a sound and progressive foundation. This should be attacked with confidence and well organized plans and programs, practical and logical, although there may be subtle and inspiring inner resources. Emotional and romantic urges should be tempered.

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a year of unforeseen experiences and opportunities, in which exceptional qualities and abilities may be drawn upon for sudden demonstration, not only on practically constructive lines but on artistic, dramatic or romantic resources of profound inspiration. These skills of exceptional talents are bound to attract attention from those ready to promote a career.

Pituitary's Effect On Body Function

BY LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
I HAVE just been spending a few days with the foremost experimental investigator of the ductless glands in the world.

The ductless glands, or the endocrine glands, are small masses of secreting tissue located at quite scattered parts of the body. Best known of them, because it is located most superficially under the skin at the base of the neck, is the thyroid gland. Anyone can see and feel this when it enlarges in the form of a goiter.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Explanation Difficult

Medical researchers of a hundred years ago had a hard time explaining these structures. They could see when they put them under the microscope that they were made up of cells that looked like glandular secreting cells—something, for instance, like the cells of the salivary glands, enough like them so that the anatomists knew they elaborated a secretion. But, whereas the salivary glands discharge their secretion into the mouth cavity through a duct, and the secretion can be separated and studied, the endocrine glands have no duct, are not connected with any body cavity, and the only way their secretion could be isolated was to grind up the gland itself and inject it hypodermically into other animals.

But through numerous studies and experiments, of late years we have come to a fairly comprehensive knowledge of the function these endocrine glands perform. In general it may be said that they act as a controller, like the governor on an engine. They supervise and regulate the processes of life. Like the old idea that one of the other is the seat of the soul.

Nothing could illustrate this better than studies on the pituitary gland, located at the base of the skull. It seems to have a regulating effect on all the other ductless glands and to be really the center of the tides of life themselves.

In a research laboratory I have seen a mouse anesthetized and by an ingenious operation the entire pituitary gland removed. It is almost a minor operation, because five minutes afterwards the mouse is sitting up, licking its paws, and looking around for food. But that mouse will never be the same again. It will never grow to the size of its litter mates. It will never reproduce young. Its hair and bones will be different. It will lead a vegetable existence.

Functions Affected

The secretion of this small gland affects the following vital body functions:

1. Growth: An animal deprived of this gland will never grow, no matter how much it eats. But such an animal can have anterior pituitary extract injected into regularly, and it will start to grow and soon catch up with its litter mates.
2. Milk secretion: Curiously the experimental animal used to show this is the pigeon. The pigeon elaborates milk in its crop and under stimulation by the pituitary lactogenic hormone these crop glands swell up and secrete abundantly.
3. It stimulates the thyroid gland and thus regulates body heat and speeds up the rate of nutrition.
4. It regulates, among other things, hair growth by its effect on the adrenal glands.
5. It also regulates the activity of reproductive life.
6. It has an effect on utilization of sugar in the body and the production of diabetes.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

W. W.: My three-year-old daughter has bronchial asthma. She has had the usual allergy tests and is now getting a weekly injection, which she must take for the next four years. Is California's dry climate so beneficial to sufferers that neither diet nor injections are necessary?

Answer—California is beneficial to the hay fever which occurs in the fall—August 15th to October 1st in the Middle and Eastern United States, but not to the year round variety. California is by no means a dry climate on the sea coast. Most children of three with asthma get over it in any climate.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, 235 E. 45th st., New York. YOUNGSTOWN

THE LITTLE DOG BARKED by ANNE ROWE

SYNOPSIS
Helen Turner, novelist, arrives at North Harbor, Maine, enroute to the nearby Fern Cove summer resort, where her first play is to be given a try-out, prior to its Broadway presentation. Pacing the deserted station platform, she heartily wishes she had accompanied her husband, Lee, on his South American business trip instead of breeding produced Tyler McVane's demands. An ancient jalousy finally wheezes to a stop and its kindly old driver apologizes for keeping her waiting. Old Mack explains that the Kilborns, who manage Fern Cove had forgotten she was coming and Tom Linwood, the director, was so busy rehearsing this week's play, she learns that Fern Cove is jointly owned by wealthy Burns Loring, scenic designer; his sister, Mrs. Parrish; and playwrights Ames Alden and George Vickery. Helen recalls that her collaborator, Stuart Amrose, had quarreled with Alden and Vickery. She is puzzled when Mack drives past the trimmings inn and theatre, finally coming to a pause in a clearing hemmed in by a thick woods, where, at the water's edge, an unpainted, dilapidated building merged with the landscape. This, explained old Mack regretfully, is where she and the young actress from New York, are to stay, adding, "It's called the dog-house 'cause the owners put unwelcome guests here."

Helen's anger mounted when she beheld the musty, ill-furnished room assigned her. Ada, local school-marm in winter, but maid-of-all-work in summer, helps her unpack.

CHAPTER FOUR
"Don't make me begin all over again and ask, 'Who's they?'" I begged. "The old man who brought me here has answered that one. By the way, who is he?"

She smiled briefly. "Oh—just old Mack. He's been here for ages. He'd say, 'since he was a pup.' Doing odd jobs for the inn and all the people around the cove."

"Everyone's handyman, talebearer and spy?" I asked suspiciously.

She looked shocked and hurt. "Oh, no, Mrs. Turner! Mack's a fine old man. It's simply—" She paused undecidedly, and then blurted out, "He hates trickery and meanness, and so he doesn't like—well—certain people, and has been warning you against them in his way. That isn't tale-bearing. Really, it isn't. He can't help hearing what's being said either. They all act as if he help had no ears. No one's careful around here. And perhaps—perhaps you think I'm a sneak and scandalmonger too, for saying they'd put you here to make you leave."

"I don't think anything of the kind," I interrupted her. "I'm truly grateful to old Mack and you. Please go on telling me—what you feel I should know."

"I'm going to," she assured me definitely. "I wouldn't, if you were a man. But I think it's a shame, putting two women in this tumble-down old house, all alone. You, and that Miss Barolite who's coming to act the star part in your play. It's so far from the theatre and the inn. Seven minutes, if you walk fast. And if it rains, or at night when it's dark, that's just seven minutes too many."

I quite agreed with her.

"Mr. Alden and Mr. Vickery are at the bottom of this intrigue, because of their quarrel with Mr. Amrose last winter. Correct?" I helped matters along.

She nodded. "Yes, Mrs. Turner. Those two and the Parrishes. At least, Mrs. Parrish is mixed up with it. She had the others for tea a couple of days back, with Mrs. Kilborn. And she never asked her before. And after a while they sent for Mr. Linwood too. Mack said they had an awful ruckus with him over signing the contract to try out your—well—your amateur play here in Fern Cove."

So Linwood was on my side of the fence. Unless he'd been won over.

"It doesn't sound dreadful at all. In fact, it's sheer flattery, coming from two has-beens," I consoled my informant. "What was the outcome of the ruckus?"

"This," Ada indicated the room and the one opposite. "Mrs. Kilborn had these two rooms cleaned up for you and the other lady. They're planning to make it so unpleasant for you that you'll leave before the play opens."

I had surmised as much. "Charming people!" I commented more to myself than Ada. "But if they imagine I'll quit or stand for their methods, they're mistaken. I'm going to the inn and the theatre, right this minute, and fight it out." Then this minute, and fight it out. "Then a thought struck me. 'What about Mr. Paulsen, the leading man from New York? Where are they dumping him?' I asked curiously.

"Oh, he's a man, and lucky." All the frustration of unwilling spinsterhood lay in Ada's tone. "He has friends among the regular players. The Marleys and they've asked him to share their cottage."

Not so good. I had met Orne Paulsen, the leading man McVane had picked, only once, and without forming an opinion about him one way or the other. Still, the knowledge of his six-foot-one of stalwart young manhood, somewhere under the same leaky roof with me and the young ingenue I hadn't met so far, would have been reassuring.

There was no use crying about it to Ada though.

"I'm glad one of us pariahs has

DIPLOMAT'S WIFE SHOT IN CHICAGO MYSTERY

MYSTERY SHOOTING of Mrs. Adele Born Williams, wealthy member of an old Chicago family and wife of a Washington diplomat, is being investigated by Chicago police. Mrs. Williams, wife of Frank Starr Williams, inset, attache of the U. S. state department, was shot in the head by a "middle-aged woman" who began firing at her and Mrs. Patricia Goodbody, 28, a daughter by a previous marriage, in their room in the Drake hotel. Mrs. Goodbody and another daughter, Elizabeth Born, are shown with their attorney above. Mrs. Williams, victim of the shooting, is pictured at right. (International)

Rationing Notes For Consumer, Merchant

The District Office of Price Administration today explained in detail the plan through which consumers may use 12 red stamps in War Ration Book 4, with a total value of 120 points, for the buying of pork and other rationed meats from farmers.

This will give consumers ample ration points for buying meat—particularly pork—from farmers who want to slaughter their hogs on the farm and market them in the form of fresh meat, William A. Maynard, district rationing executive, said.

"That is—all but the soot-dead," Mrs. Kilborn elaborated, displaying two rows of perfect false teeth in her malicious enjoyment of the situation. "It's two rooms with a bath between, in the cove wing. They go together and are ten dollars apiece to night. You wouldn't want to pay that much, would you?"

The price was outrageous, but there was to be had was such a relief. I almost laughed aloud.

"On the contrary, I'm delighted to pay that much or more," I assured her, delving into my handbag and pulling out a fat roll of bills—five hundred dollars I had taken along in cash, in case of disaster. "I'll take the suite for two weeks. One room for me, and one for Miss Linda Barolite, the young actress Mr. McVane is sending. Let me see—two weeks at twenty a night is two hundred and eighty. Here you are: A hundred, two hundred, twenty, forty, sixty, eighty."

There was no answer from behind the desk. Only silence—so deep and long it began to worry me. But in the end the sight of so much of Uncle Sam's currency prevailed.

Mrs. Kilborn cleared her throat and said thickly to her husband: "Give the lady a receipt, Frank," and to me: "You can move in any time tomorrow morning."

The first round had gone to me! (To Be Continued)

Urges Milk Consumption Be Kept At Present Level

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Civilian milk consumption must be held at present levels or quota restrictions now in effect in 112 areas will be extended to other localities, the Office of War Information said today in a report on the national milk and cream supply situation.

Estimates of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics indicate milk production during 1944 will decline to 116,000,000 pounds, 6,000,000,000 pounds under the War Food administration goal of 122,000,000,000 pounds, the OWI said.

The WFA said farmers would have to increase their dairy herds by two per cent in the year, and increase production per cow by 50 pounds, to attain the production goal.

The OWI said coupon rationing of milk products was unlikely.

"Gibson Girl" Choice Of Stranded Fliers (By United Press)

MADISON, Wis. — To Traux Field soldiers "the girl I'd most like to be stranded with" is not Hedy Lamarr, nor Lana Turner, nor any movie star. She's the gal with the old-fashioned name, "The Gibson Girl."

"The Gibson Girl" isn't a luscious pin-up job or a curvaceous 1880 belle. She's a slender bit of machinery known technically as an emergency radio transmitter.

The compact kit is designed to save marooned fliers. It is released from a stricken plane before the fliers bail out and it floats by parachute to the water or ground within a few feet of the stranded aviator.

The yellow duffel bag holds a box kite, two balloons, two hydrogen generators, antenna wire, and a signal light. Its color increases visibility and the waist-repellant jacket keeps the transmitter afloat.

Clear concise directions printed on the set tell the soldier how to manipulate it to send emergency messages, if he has not already been instructed in radio technique.

Presbyterian Layman Leads Churches World Peace Plan

By ZACHARY TAYLOR

AP Features Writer

NEW YORK — A canny Presbyterian with a soft voice and a flair for hard, Biblical fact is at the bottom of this ground-swell of church activity toward peace.

He is the pen of the declaration called "Six Pillars of Peace" issued by the Federal Council of Churches. He had war.

John Foster Dulles is chairman of the council's peace committee. There was no comparable effort in 1918, but today the bulk of 35 million Protestant Americans—with the blessing of many Catholics and Jews—is reciting the message of the "Six Pillars."

"Christian people always have decided this nation's major policies," says Dulles.

Dulles is an international lawyer who has made many diplomatic sidetraps. He helped write the Versailles peace. His office is 20 floors above Wall Street. He is trustee of his church and of the Rockefeller Foundation; the son of a theological professor, the grandson of a secretary of state.

At 55, he is not a frustrated veteran of treaty-making. He nourishes a vision of a "fellowship of nations" which would do away with power politics and which evolved from many conferences and ecumenical resolutions since 1937.

There is a steady, tireless vigor to this man who takes a stroll-up and down his office—as he outlines the philosophy of the "pillars."

"We have laid down our principles—international fellowship, economic co-operation, peaceful changes in treaties, self-rule ultimately for all people, control of arms and religious liberty."

"And make no mistake, the church knows whereof it speaks. Even the tiniest parish supports world missions, in turn is aware of the seamy side and economic injustices in the world. Here is the secret of our love for China and our attitude toward imperialism in India."

How can the church hope for a just peace?

"We shall oppose imperialism, policies for a 'balance of power' or for a rule of force in which the affirmative development of the fellowship of peoples is omitted. Force must be harnessed to justice and equity."

A Plague On Antagonism

And, in practice, Dulles insists that all nations must cease knowing each other by antagonism.

"We left out Russia at Versailles and spent the next 25 years in thinly-veiled hostilities toward her. Today Russia seems terribly atheistic, but the world needs in its fellowship the contributions of these creative peoples."

"America is stale in its freedom; Russia is dynamic. We have much for each other."

How is America to be committed to such a peace?

"Some of our churches—like the Methodists—are even ringing doorbells to educate our people. Some of us speak and write. We each put forward our plan in the ways we think best."

"The politicians know—and are deeply sensitive."

"You see," says the peace-promoter, "this is a democracy of free people, governed from its beginning by Christian principles. We elect our peace-makers and Christian sentiment can guide them."

Leetonia War Bond Drive Hits $17,000

LEETONIA, Jan. 22.—The total sales for the Fourth War Loan drive was reported to be $17,000 Friday evening. The quota for Leetonia is $132,000.

Since the local committee does not have a display "thermometer" to show the daily climb of bond sales, the public will be kept posted by red ribbons placed opposite the boys names on the service board on Main st. Each ribbon will represent approximately $500 worth of bonds.

Mrs. John Arnold entertained bridge club associates Friday.

Rev. and Mrs. William C. Snowball will entertain the Unity class of the Methodist church this evening.

Corp. Forrest Shinn, of Ft. Belver, Va., is visiting friends and relatives.

Cut Seen In 'A' Gas

CLEVELAND, Jan. 22.—A cut in "A" gasoline rations in this area may be expected "unless consumption is drastically reduced," Birkett L. Williams, regional office of Price Administration director, asserted in ordering boards to cut supplemental rations wherever possible. He said the area was consuming 9,000 barrels of gasoline daily above its quota.

Wounded Return to Normal Life With Aid of New Limbs

(By Associated Press)
 MARE ISLAND, Calif., Jan. 22.—Sailors and Marines who lost legs in Guadalcanal and elsewhere in the Pacific are walking out of the naval hospital here into good civilian jobs, thanks to an unusual rehabilitation program.
 Some of them saunter around with little or no signs of a limp. Some dance as enthusiastically as they ever did; a few of them undertake to run footraces. Their morale, says Capt. J. P. Owen, their commanding officer, is sky high.
 This high degree of rehabilitation is attributed by Capt. Owen to a special technique which gives a tailored fit to their artificial legs and a reorientation course which reaches them to do a great many things with as much efficiency as anyone could show. It demonstrates they do not have to live as cripples.
 Fitted Individually
 The tailor-made leg is the result of cooperative effort by Navy and civilian agencies in the past such appliances were standardized, not individually fitted.
 Until World War II was well under way, the Navy had no facilities for equipping men with false legs or arms.
 One of the outstanding examples of reconstruction is that of Joe Burns, water tender third class, from Pasadena, Calif. During an engagement in the Pacific, Burns was standing on the deck of a ship when an explosive projectile landed in a coil of cable nearby. The blast sent the cable flashing across the deck, cutting off both Burns' lower legs. Now he is walking again, and without crutches. Some of these men are due to return to service in limited capacities but most will be discharged when their rehabilitation is as thorough as the system will permit. Those who return to civilian life have no trouble getting jobs, Capt. Owen said.
 Several plan to be drivers of trucks or other motor vehicles. One of them expects to take a police job.

"THERE'S ONE PLACE WE'VE GOT TO WIN—and that's Tokyo," said Admiral William F. Halsey, Jr., the other day when he came back from the Pacific for a Washington conference. In the immediate blueprint for progress toward Tokyo by air, sea and land, there are combinations of strategy and co-ordinated Allied effort which this map seeks to simplify. Cutting the supply lines and seizure of key Jap air bases in the South and Central Pacific are vital factors in the Gilbert and Marshall island campaigns and figure prominently in the New Guinea activities, as the white arrows indicate. Gen. Douglas MacArthur has placed recapture of the Philippines as a high spot in his campaign and co-ordinated Allied drives in the Indian and Pacific oceans during the next few months may mark the start of a giant pincers offensive to retake the Philippines. One theory, as shown, is that Lord Louis Mountbatten's forces may move from the Andaman and Nicobar islands against Malaya. (International)

Your Man In Southwest Pacific Still Loves You, Red Cross Aide Assures Girls

By CORNELIA E. POREA
 CLEVELAND, Jan. 22.—Girls, you can take the word of Mary K. Browne, veteran Cleveland sports-woman, your man in the Southwest Pacific loves you.
 Armed with messages to girl friends and parents from Ohio lads down under, Miss Browne said in an interview, "It's against rules to bring back messages but when these men asked me to tell their folks and their best girls how they were, how could I refuse?"
 Miss Browne is on a leave of absence from Red Cross work after 20 months in the Southwest Pacific where she directed a canteen in Brisbane, Australia, and later headed forward area mobile canteens.

One of the things the boys keep telling her, she declared, was "tell my girl I never see a woman down there. I love her and always will. Tell Mom and Dad and tell her it's a lot different war than the one he fought."

Miss Back-Home Luxuries
 Miss Browne praised the men of the 32nd division in the Buna campaign, saying "about 80 per cent of the boys had malaria. They would not go to doctors to be fixed up."
 "They are eager for soft drinks, milk, fresh fruit juices, hot water, beds, sheets and all the little things we take for granted," the former tennis and golf champion said.

Time, she recalled, means nothing in the Pacific. "It's a seven-day war over there. We go on the longest bombing missions in the world, knock out 200 Japs, gain 500 yards. It's like a football game, just plug, plug, plug."
 "We think nothing of a 36-hour day. Sometimes I have met hospital ships, planes, hospital trains with the mobile unit and also continued with my club duties," the Red Cross worker recalled. "I have baked doughnuts because there were no cooks. And it has been worth it. Those boys are fighting and flying the worst war in the world without a complaint."

Miss Browne first became prominent as a national women's doubles tennis champion in 1913. She won other championships in 1913, 1914, 1921 and 1925. She shared the national mixed doubles title with Bill Tilden in 1913 and 1914, and R. N. Williams II in 1912, and with Bill Johnston in 1921. The Red Cross worker was also former women's state golf champion and a national runner-up in 1924.

War Production Up, Patterson Declares

(By Associated Press)
 CHICAGO, Jan. 22.—Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson said today total production for war is increasing, not diminishing, but the War department is actively planning for prompt return of industry to peacetime production with as little dislocation as possible.

Asserting that industrial reconversion will be "at least as difficult, and will take at least as long," as the original conversion to war production, Patterson told the United States conference of mayors "the planning we now do for reconversion is in the nature of insurance."

The War department does not consider the war nearly over, Patterson told the mayors, but added, "we must now begin to think about the world after the war if we are not to lose the fruits of the very victory for which we are fighting."

"We must consider what demobilization will do to our domestic economy, and through it to the economy of the world," Patterson said in his prepared address.

P. O. Is Not A. P. O.

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y., Jan. 22.—Last October Miss Helen E. VerPlanck ordered two pairs of shoes from a store, asked that they be sent to P. O. Box 841, White Plains. The shoes finally arrived the other day.

A postal clerk apparently thought the parcel was marked A. P. O., shipped it to North Africa. Officials there mailed it back.

Miss VerPlanck didn't mind the delay but balked at paying the postage due and customs duty.

While your $100 nestled in the bank

THE TIME: November, 1943.

THE PLACE: Betio, just one of twenty-five outcroppings that comprise Tarawa atoll of the Gilbert Islands.

SCENE I: Early morning of November 19th.

In the most concentrated naval gunfire in history, 800 tons of bombs are dropped by American carrier planes and 2000 tons of shells are hurled by battleships, cruisers, and destroyers.
 But all of that is not enough.

SCENE II: The next day.

The table reef prevents the Marines from landing in their Higgins boats and many have to debark 800 yards from the beach and wade in against heavy fire.

Squads of them are blown back into the water in bloody, unidentifiable masses. Many more are hung in death on the barbed-wire barricades in the shallow waters that lap over the treacherous reef.

Now come the Jap pillboxes—some 500 of them—made of coconut logs or concrete or steel. So ingenously staged are these pillboxes that when a forward one is destroyed, the Marines moving into the cleared area are mowed down by fire from two inner pillboxes.

And finally, the inevitable snipers in the palm trees—unseen, unpredictable, accurate.

SCENE III: Evening of the third day.

Betio has been taken by the United Nations!

But that little strip of white coral, less than one square mile in area, cost us the fiercest, bloodiest, most ruthless battle in all American history. 1092 Marines paid with their lives. And the best part of 2680 will never again be whole, free-moving men. Officers who know warn us that Betio was only the beginning of the real war in the Pacific.

Is that $100 of yours still nestling? It's needed—now. It's needed to help put over the Fourth War Loan, to keep backing the attack! At least $100 extra, over and above your regular bond-buying. Better $200, $300, $500. Today!

Salem High Loses In Upset To Canton Lincoln 43 To 35

PERMAR BROTHERS ON SCORING SPREE ON CANTON FLOOR

Staggering Quakers Drop Third In Row, Fifth In Nine Contests

Staging a red hot shooting exhibition and springing an unexpected upset, the Canton Lincoln Lions roared over the Salem Quakers, last night 43-35, netting their first win of the year in seven games and handing Coach Herb Brown's cagers their fifth loss in nine regular tests—the third loss in a row for staggering Quakers.

The battle was staged in the roomy Lincoln gym before a capacity crowd, which was in mild hysteria most of the game.

The Quakers had all the pregame advantages—the best record, more height, and a smoother working all around club—but the Canton boys, tutored by Chuck Forrest, had what always brings the payoff—more baskets. Two brothers, Paul and Jacques Permar, scored a family supper and total 26 points between them, scoring baskets from virtually every spot on the floor with amazing ease.

Walter Brian and Ray Wise coupled their abilities to almost equal the Permar brothers, but the rest of the Quaker starters failed to pace the mark set by the other three Lions. Wise and Brian netting 14 and 15 points, Brian getting 14 and Wise 11.

Starting lineup changed. Herb Brown of Salem altered his usual starting five and used Charles Schaeffer at forward and Jimmie Appedisan in a ball handling assignment along with the three lettermen, Brian, Wise and Frank En-triken. Later Brown inserted Frank Smith and Francis Lantry into the game at their regular spots and used Bill Stout for the best part of the last two periods.

In the first stanza it looked as though the Quakers were in for an easy victory. However, after going without a two pointer from the floor during the first eight minutes of play, the Lions came back in a hurry to collect 17 points in the second period and the score was knotted 20-20 by halftime.

Salem was outpointed from then on, Canton getting 13 to 7 in the third period and 10 to 8 in the final. From the foul line Salem did well—but the Lions did better. Salem made seven of 11 tries, but Canton grabbed five of six shots. From the floor the Lions were also superior, making 19 field goals to 14 for the Quakers.

A Clean Game. This is the third straight game that has ended with Salem's opponents totaling 43 points, and the Quakers fell just short of their performances with East Liverpool and Warren, against whom they managed 37 points.

The game was a clean one, with only 17 fouls called, 11 on Lincoln and six against Salem.

The Quakers now have won four games and lost five, officially, and they also have a loss to an Alumni squad charged against them. Their next contest is at home Friday night against Youngstown Rayen. It will be the only contest this season with a Youngstown school.

M'GRANAHAN QUILTS AS OSU ASSISTANT

Former Alliance Man Has Been Aide to Paul Brown For Last 10 Years

(By Associated Press) COLUMBUS, Jan. 22.—The resignation of Hugh McGranahan as an assistant grid mentor at Ohio State university ends a 10-year coaching partnership.

McGranahan, who announced yesterday he would enter private industry, had been assistant to Paul Brown, Ohio State's head football coach, for three years. He has been tutor of Buckeye guards.

He said he had been thinking of getting into business for several years, and that because of the manpower shortage it now seemed a logical time to make the change. Brown said he regretted McGranahan's action.

"Back in 1934 at Massillon High school my assistants were Mac Carroll, Widdows and Fritz Heisler," Brown commented. "Fritz is in the Navy and now that McGranahan is leaving there are only two of us left."

"I'm sorry our association had to end. Mac's a great guy and we wish him the best of success." McGranahan was graduated from Mt. Union college in 1925. He starred there in football.

In 1926 he accepted a professorship at the Detroit college of medicine and surgery and the next year transferred to the Detroit Institute of Technology, instructing in engineering and chemistry.

At Detroit Tech he coached football, basketball and baseball. In 1933 he returned to his home town of Alliance, O., to coach Junior high teams. In 1943 he joined Brown at Massillon.

The War Today

By DeWitt MacKenzie

agreed that annihilation of the enemy is the one sure way to victory—and they mean killing or capture. The mere forcing of the foe to abandon territory doesn't win wars.

The Prussian war lords always have been leading exponents of annihilation. Now they are being served with a big dish of their own strong meat. The Russians have consistently pursued annihilation tactics in their offensives. Almost invariably their attacks have been turning movements, designed to trap men. The many curving Red thrusts now cutting through the thousand miles or so of German battle line, look like so many sickles—part of the emblem of the Soviet union.

No wonder the Germans are short of reserves. Their lack of men is one of the prime causes of their growing weakness.

So far as concerns the Leningrad-Novogorod battle, catastrophe is casting its black shadow over the Hitlerite ranks. It will take all the undoubted skill of their command to extricate them from their perilous position. And even if they escape the trap, it means a disastrous defeat.

An early result would be the collapse of Finland. Continued Red success also would force the evacuation of the Baltic states, thereby further endangering the whole Nazi front in Russia.

CHANGE IN 1944 TAX RETURN DATE SEEN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—You may not have to tell Uncle Sam on March 15 how much you expect to make in 1944, the present date for the information.

Delay in passing the new tax bill is expected to result in postponement of the preliminary return date until about April 15, revenue officials said today.

The postponement, however, does not mean a delay in filing returns for 1943 taxes and the unforgotten part of 1942 taxes.

mountains on the Fifth and Eighth army fronts to the south.

The plunge threatens to close the escape roads of the German Tenth army at the Rome bottleneck if the Nazis try to withdraw. These roads are 12 and 22 miles from Nettuno harbor.

First reports from advanced Allied headquarters did not indicate the degree of German resistance encountered by landing units.

The smash into the Liro valley came from the Cassino area, where American and French troops have been pressing against the German Gustav line. American troops crossed the Rapido river.

British troops seized Tremenuoli, about a mile north of captured Minturno, and Vandra, about a half mile north of the German line.

The invasion changed the entire picture in the battle of Italy, placing Allied troops behind as well as in front of the enemy in that area, and the next 24 hours will probably make the Germans decide whether to stay in the pocket and fight it out, or withdraw northward.

Apparently they had no great force in place to oppose the landings. Moon, wind and light were considered during the hour of the attack. The troops had several hours of night in which to get into good positions ashore.

An Allied officer described the South of the Pripets, as shown by arrow, the Reds are well beyond Sarny and further south, German troops are counterattacking near the Bug and putting up a terrific defense of their rail centers. invasion as "hazardous" and indicated the stiffest resistance could be expected as soon as the Germans recovered from their surprise.

PARAMUSHIRO BASE BOMBED BY NAVY

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Two bombing raids on Paramushiro, a major Japanese naval base in the North Pacific, were announced by the Navy today.

Planes flew out from the Aleutians over approximately 720 miles of the North Pacific ocean to hit the base at the northern end of the Kurile chain.

Enemy installations on the southern coast of the island of Paramushiro were battered by the first of two groups of bombers to carry out the assaults on Friday night. In the second raid three hours later the northern part of the enemy's naval stronghold was attacked.

Approximately 7,000,000 British women are working either part whole time in industry.
